The FARMERS CORNER

by RALPH H. TAYLOR
Executive Secretary
Agricultural Council of California

When the books are balanced on the special session of the State Legislature, which has held the spotlight at Sacramento during the last few weeks, there will be both "profit" and "loss" items in the ledger.

But on the whole, the special legislative session has indicated a healthy determination on the part of a majority of the legislators to clamp down on governmental abuses and to put an end to the worst debauch of public spending in the state's history.

The special session balance sheet will show more "profit" for the long-suffering taxpayer than any other for many years past — and California farmers, together with all other taxpayers, owe a very real debt of gratitude to the members of the Legislature who have refused to be stampeded into voting millions in new taxes.

From all indications at this writing, nearly all of Governor Olson's proposed $50,000,000 tax program — including new income taxes, new taxes on gas and oil, new business franchise taxes and many other taxes — will be swept up by the janitors, instead of becoming a part of the state's top-heavy tax structure.

Likewise, the State Administration's enormous budget for SRA, which would have bled every taxpayer in the state to support it, has been chopped down to a much more reasonable figure, although in final form, it will still rank, undoubtedly, as one of the highest re-appropriations in the nation.

The relief problem — the greatest and most difficult factor in the tax problem — is still far from permanent solution, but some progress, at least, has been made. Public airing of scandalous abuses in the SRA has been helpful in focusing attention on the need for tightening up the purse strings and breaking the domination of the "pressure groups," Communists and political manipulators in the relief set-up.

And members of the bi-partisan economy bloc, who turned on the light in dark places — and then demanded a cleanup with a decent regard for the rights of the people who foot the bill — have rendered California a signal service.

Revelations of reckless waste and extravagance, chiseling, radical infiltration, needless duplication, inefficiency, political favoritism and haphazard, incompetent administration became so conclusive and so startling that even some of the legislators who had previously defended the policy of unrestricted spending for relief were forced to change position. And yet there is every reason to believe that the investigations thus far have only pricked the surface.

Perhaps the most convincing evidence of abuses in the relief system, which have cost California taxpayers millions of dollars, came to the Legislature in a report from the Los Angeles SRA chapter of the California State Employees' Association.

The employee group, representing those engaged in administration of the relief in Los Angeles County, made the unqualified charge that one-third of those receiving state relief are chiselers, or worse.

It divided relief recipients into three classes — about equal in number: "First, those undoubtedly deserving. Second, those doubtfully deserving, a group which consists of many families which have always

As far as the B division of the northern section of the Mother Lode high school basketball league is concerned, the teams have just been wasting their time, because they have played the schedule through and all three of them are still on equal footing, as reference to the accompanying standings will show.

The schedule ended with the round at Ione last Friday night in which the Cougar A and C teams, all ready section champions won their games, while the Cougar Bees, who needed a victory over Ione, lost 30 to 8.

The result is a three-way play-off to decide the tie. Sutter Creek and Ione will play Friday night of this week and then, the middle of the coming week some time, the winner will play the Cougars, the winner to be declared section champion.

The intersectional championships will be decided at Sonoma on February 23, when the Cougar A and C teams meet the Sonoma fives in their class, and the northern section B team winner will play the Tuolumne high school Bees.

Friday night at Ione the Cougar babes opened with a 7 to 2 lead in the first quarter and made it 10 to 4 at the half. It was 16 to 7 at three quarters and 25 to 10, final. Rupley and Ball led with six points each. Gray scored five, Young four, Land three and Weidman one.

In the Bee game, it was 12 to 2 for Ione at the quarter and 19 to 4 at the half. The Cougars did as well in the second half as they did in the first while Ione added a total of eleven more points.

Edson Returns As Manager

Safeway Names Placerville Man To Succeed J. E. Green In Charge Of Local Market

Lewis Edson, who moved from Placerville in 1935 to become manager of the Safeway store at Vacaville, is home again as manager of the Safeway store in Placerville, succeeding J. E. Green, who has resigned.

Edson, son of F. A. Edson, of Benham Street, came to Placerville in 1932 to join his father and two years later entered the employ of the Safeway organization in the Placerville store.

His progress in the company's service was so satisfactory that when the need for a manager at Vacaville arose, Edson was offered and accepted the opportunity to fill the post.

He returns to Placerville as manager of the local store from that post. During his former residence here, Edson was a member of the Placerville Volunteer Department.

Mr. and Mrs. Edson have been property-holders in Placerville for some time past, having acquired Mr. Edson's father's place on Benham street. They have one daughter, Harriett, who is getting acquainted with her old-time friends again as a sixth grade pupil at the grammar school.

Bud says, "Placerville is home to me and it's good to be home again."

TWO PLAYS PRESENTED AT MISSOURI FLAT FRIDAY NIGHT

The members of the Thespian Club of Missouri Flat scored a success in the presentation of two plays, which were the features of an entertainment, at the Missouri Flat Community Hall.

In addition to the plays, there were special musical numbers by Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Hardy and by Frank Drennan. Later in the evening, there was dancing to music by George Taylor's orchestra.

There were two plays presented, a two-act farce, "The Red Lamp," and a one-act comedy, "Fifty-Fifty." The cast for the two-act play included Delia Baum, Marie Miller, Art Speegle, Frank Drennan, Isabel Long and Ted Mason. Mr. Mason and Miss Miller presented the second play.

Dr. C. C. Long was in charge of the preparations of the plays for presentation.

City of Flint Tars Salute the Nazi Flag

Men of the American City of Flint show how they feel about Germany as they salute a Nazi banner. It was under this flag that the City of Flint was sailed to Russia after capture by a German sea raider in the North Atlantic. Later the Nazis tried to take the ship to Germany. It was seized by Norway and given back to the American crew. After a 113-day odyssey the Flint returned to Baltimore, where sailors are pictured.

SPEAKING TEST TUESDAY NIGHT

Committee Of Judges From Sacramento Will Pick Winner From Five Entries

The El Dorado County elimination contest for high school students which is sponsored by the Native Sons of the Golden West, will be held Tuesday night at 8 o'clock at the Masonic temple under the auspices of a committee of Placerville Parlor No. 9, N.S.G.W. The friends of the contestants and the public generally are welcome to attend.

The oratorical contest has been conducted each year for several years past by the Native Sons and the eliminations Tuesday night mark the first time in recent years that the county has put forward a candidate.

The winner of the elimination contest will represent the county in eliminations to select the winner in the northern part of the state and then the northern section winner will compete against the southern section winner at the annual Grand Parlor of Native Sons, at Bakersfield in May.

According to Leo Ench, chairman of the local committee, the three judges for the eliminations Tuesday night will come from Sacramento with Professor E. I. Cook, of Sacramento Junior College, as chairman. Sacramento County Assessor Walter Hicks and Karl Kuchman, Sacramento attorney, are the other two judges.

There are five entries in the eliminations, all from the county high school. They are, Donald Wright, Sylvia K. Johnson, Velma Lumsden, Betsy Faugstad and Henry West.

The entries have prepared their talks on subjects chosen from a list of suggestions issued by the state contest committee of the Native Sons of the Golden West, all relating to some phase or incident in the state's early history.

Patterson Talks In Placerville

Workers Alliance Head Presides At Meeting At Grammar School

Ellis Patterson, lieutenant-governor of California, was in Placerville Friday night and spoke at a meeting at the Placerville Grammar School which was presided over by C. G. Meredith, chairman of the local Workers Alliance. Attendance at the meeting was variously estimated at fifty to one hundred.

The chairman of the Workers Alliance introduced George Taylor, whom he said was "our next state senator" and Mr. Taylor introduced the lieutenant-governor of California, whom he said would be our next United States Senator.

Mr. Patterson performed some political gymnastics deprecating the efforts of the Democratic party to fulfill its platform pledges and criticizing the county Farm Bureau directors for their resolution suggesting that the "production for use" plan be shelved until such time when, as and if California accepts communism.

Among those who were here from San Francisco on Friday to attend the last rites for Frank E. Lee, Dr. Lee Cohn, Mr. and Mrs. Irving Cohn, Harold A. Jacobs and Albert Simon, all of San Francisco.

Price Denies He's Student Aviator

City Councilman Sid Price made a "one point landing" at Placerville airport on Sunday but he positively denies that he's a student aviator.

The explanation for his having one arm in a sling Monday morning is that he was riding a horse and took a fall, which resulted in a severe strain on a ligament in the arm.

"Prince of Wales?" suggested someone who evidently didn't know that the prince is now Duke of Windsor.

"Guess so," Price smiled in return.

Rural Telephone Exhibit Planned

Demonstration Units To Be Opened For Three Days Starting On Thursday

A special demonstration unit, designed to show rural telephone users who own and maintain their own telephone lines how best to construct and maintain their lines and equipment, will be brought to Placerville this week for three days opening Thursday according to J. G. Hearn, local manager for The Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Company. The demonstration unit will be set up at 365 Main Street, opposite the I. O. O. F. Hall.

According to Hearn, the purpose of this unit is to provide a rural telephone check service to farm line telephone users, who are invited to bring in their telephone instruments for free inspection and minor repairs. Complete telephone advisors accompany the demonstration unit. From them helpful information may be obtained regarding the proper maintenance of rural telephone lines and instruments without obligation on the part of the telephone user.

The rural telephone check service will be available to all farm line users in this community for three days starting Thursday, February 15. Visiting hours will be from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m. each day and all rural telephone users will be welcomed, Hearn said.

"If you are experiencing unsatisfactory service because of poor line construction or faulty telephone equipment, come in and consult with our experts during this free demonstration," said Hearn. "These men will be glad to test instruments brought in for examination, make necessary minor adjustments without charge and advise if any major repairs or replacements are needed. This service is free and we hope that farm line users will take advantage of this opportunity while our demonstration unit is in this vicinity."

CORONER'S INQUEST IN THREE DEATHS ON FRIDAY

Coroner A. J. Orelli conducted inquests into three recent deaths by violence in the county at the court house on Friday night.

One matter was the death of Mrs. Marian Josephine Martin, of Silver Fork. The other matter was a joint inquest in the matter of the deaths of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Lorain. It had been obvious in each instance what the findings would be so that each inquiry served no purpose but to comply with the law. It was formally found that Mrs. Martin shot herself and that Mr. Lorain had ended the suffering of his fatally ill wife and then joined her in death.

LIONS "PARTY" TUESDAY NIGHT

Ellis Purlee, Speaker; Dancing Follows Dinner At Shakespeare Clubhouse

Placerville Lions will dispense with their regular meeting Tuesday noon and will hold their meeting of the week in the form of a ladies night and Valentine's party at the Shakespeare Clubhouse in the evening.

The program for the night, developed by a committee of which Lion Walter Drysdale is chairman, will include dinner, entertainment featuring a talk by Ellis Purlee, of Sacramento, and dancing to music by Aubrey Olson's orchestra.

Dinner, served by ladies of the Shakespeare Club, will be at seven o'clock. Mr. Purlee, register of the U. S. Land Office at Sacramento, has spoken before the club on previous occasions and is noted for his special ability to speak pertinently, entertainingly and sometimes with hilarious effect upon topics of current interest. He will be presented by Lion Thomas Maul, at whose invitation he comes to Placerville for the meeting.

Other entertainment will include vocal numbers by George McKee, who also will lead in community singing.

The committee in charge reports an approximate ninety reservations for the dinner.

YOUTH KILLED SATURDAY

First CCC Fatality In County Recorded At Weber Creek Quarry

The first fatal accident in the CCC in El Dorado County since institution of the national works program for young men in 1933 was recorded on Saturday when Alfred Burdette, 19, an Ohio enrollee at Camp Snowline, was killed instantly at a rock quarry on Weber Creek just down-stream from the bridge which spans the creek on U. S. Route 50.

Burdette was crushed and died instantly of a compound fracture of the skull under a boulder estimated to weigh about 1,000 pounds.

The body was removed to the Daggett funeral home at Sacramento for removal to New Philadelphia, Ohio, for funeral services and interment. Burdette had been at Camp Snowline about a month. He was the son of Mrs. Alfradeta Egler and a native of Denison, Ohio.

Coroner A. J. Orelli will hold an inquest Wednesday night.

The youth was one of a crew of Snowline CCC enrollees who was quarrying rock for use in construction work at the Institute of Forest Genetics.

Camp Snowline and Forest Services made an investigation of the tragedy during the weekend and concluded their inquiry on Monday morning.

They learned that the tragedy was occasioned by unusual and unforeseen circumstances. Burdette and other enrollees had broken out a large boulder from the wall and were preparing to roll it farther away from the wall where they

Funeral services were held at Jackson Sunday under auspices of the Masonic lodge for Webb Smith, 83, widely known in Mother Lode mining circles.

Mr. Smith entered the employ of the Kennedy Mining and Milling Company in 1894 and two years later was named foreman of the Kennedy Mill, at Jackson. In 1903 he was made assistant superintendent for the concern and five years later, on the death of Superintendent James F. Parks, Mr. Smith was named to succeed him. POUND CAKE

The following is a recipe for an old fashion pound cake. This recipe is over one hundred years old. It has been handed down from one generation to another in my family, originally coming from England. This recipe was requested by one of our readers:

1 lb. butter (fresh) equals two cups. 1 lb. sugar—equals two cups. 1 lb. flour (all purpose) equals four cups. 1 lb. eggs—equals 9 large ones. 1 tsp. lemon extract. 1 tsp. baking powder. 1/2 tsp. salt. Separate eggs. Beat egg yolks, then add sugar and beat until lemon color. In another bowl cream butter, then add sifted flour with salt and baking powder—cream well together. Add the egg and sugar mixture to this, and beat well. Last add the lemon flavoring and stiffly beaten egg whites. Mix well. Pour into a well greased tube cake pan and bake 1 1/2 hours in a slow oven.

HOW TO MAKE STARCH

Recently I have had many customers say they have difficulty in making starch that will not stick. Clothes are not worn as stiff and glossy as formerly, but numerous articles need starch to give them a sheen after ironing and also to help keep them clean longer. Fabric fuzz is held down after ironing and the smoother surface will resist dirt.

I am giving you general directions for making starch, unless otherwise indicated on the package of the particular brand you use: Mix 1/2 cup dry starch with 1 cup cold water. Add 2 quarts boiling water, stirring constantly until the mixture clears. Cook over a slow fire for about 5 minutes. Cool and thin, until starch, when poured, is of consistency of milk. Skim and strain. Add pinch of salt while hot. To remove scorch—if slight, place in the sunlight for a couple of hours. If badly scorched rub with weak solution of cloxox. Place in sunlight for a couple of hours.

Facts:—Did You Know

That a pineapple is not an apple, nor is it pine. It's a berry.

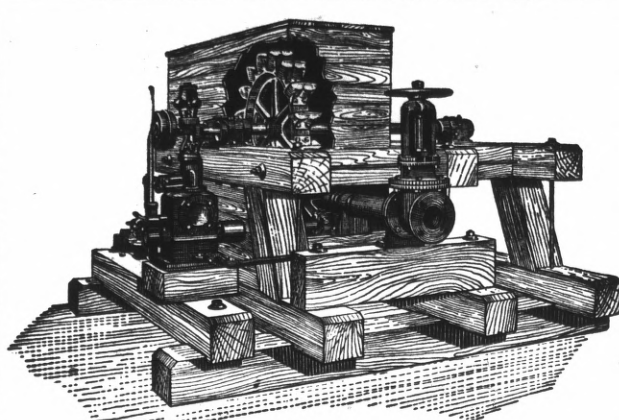

That cabbages were originally wild plants growing on Great Britain shores.

That in China Yams grow to be as long as three feet and sometimes weigh as much as thirty pounds.

That a carrot or two added to the dried lima beans you are cooking will add much to the flavor.

INSPIRED BY A COW, the Pelton water wheel furnished power for some of California's early gold mines and is the basis for some of the great turbines which convert water power into electrical energy throughout the world. An early Pelton model is shown above.

Thirsty Cow Gave Pioneer Miner Inspiration For Water Wheel

Boulder Dam with its tremendous turbines singing their song of harnessed power hardly conjures up in the imagination the picture of a cow. Yet, if history records the event truthfully, it was an humble bossie that inspired Lester A. Pelton, miner, carpenter and millwright to invent the Pelton water wheel, which today forms the basis of the great turbines that convert water power into electrical energy throughout the world. Pelton died in 1908 and is buried at about this idea? Write down your favorite recipe, for any dish, salad or pastry, and mail or bring it in to me, or to the office of this newspaper. These famous recipes from homemakers of El Dorado County, will be published in this column from time to time. Then during the last week in May of this year, during the Homecraft Institute, a complete Cook Booklet of all these recipes will be printed and given free to all those women who have submitted one or more recipes during the intervening time. If you like the idea let me hear from you, soon.

Most of the resident homemakers here know about the Homecraft Institute. But just to refresh your memory and to enlighten new comers, the Homecraft Institute is a combination cooking school merchandise demonstration and home appliance exhibit which is conducted each spring at the Shakespeare Clubhouse, by Jane Barton, home economics editor of The Pacific Rural Press. It is sponsored jointly by this newspaper and The Pacific Rural Press. Dates this year are May 22-23-24.

working equipment of the times, including a long hose that furnished a powerful stream of water from the heights above his claim.

Sometime during the day a thirsty cow wandered onto the workings in search of a drink, and Pelton, becoming alarmed at the possibility of her upsetting his sluice boxes, turned the hose on her to drive her off. The powerful stream of water hit the cow squarely on her cup-like nostrils, and as a result her head was thrown violently to one side. The sight of the blast of water hitting the cow's nose gave Pelton the idea for his water wheel, and within an hour had rigged up empty tin cans on the rim of a wagon wheel and was experimenting with the crude model of what was destined to become one of the outstanding inventions in California's history.

The Pelton water wheel today is a form of impulse turbine consisting of a row of double cup-shaped buckets arranged around the rim of a wheel, and is actuated by one or more jets of water played into the cups at high velocity.

QUALITY CLEANSING PAYS"YOUNG EYES"
By JAMES ASWELL

COPYRIGHT BY JAMES ASWELL  DISTRIBUTED BY KING FEATURES SYNDICATE, INC.

Dick Carteroy, rich, elderly, Broadway "playboy," tells his own story of a strange, moving experience. While backing a gaudy night club for divertimento, his friend Cynthia St. George, who runs the place, gives a job as hostess to an amazing seventeen-year-old girl, Sally Brule. Sally is as lovely as Severa china, possessed of candid, eager eyes and a frank absorption in the surface glitter of the world, particularly the gaudy atmosphere of the Salon Royal, where hard bright little girls—different, somehow from Sally—ogle "sugar daddies" nightly. Carteroy is smitten as he has never been before. He is half ashamed of the impulse—but he wants to protect Sally. When he mentions, out of habit, how she would look in pearls, Sally rejoins: "What'll I have to do to get them?" Carteroy is floored. Later Cynthia reveals that Sally is the daughter of "Eddie Brule, a college boy who used to be in love with me." And she adds: "I'm going to keep that kid straight, so help me! What makes you think I can't do it?"

CHAPTER IV.

"YOU'RE sure worried over the kid. Take it easy, baby. I just thought, meeting the guys she does around here—" I broke off as something came over me. "Say, Cynthia," I took out my cigar and talked straight. "I'm with you. Don't worry about me. I won't make any play. If I can give you a hand in making that kid behave, I will. I'll—well, the kid is as about as cute as a minute, and she's got the wrong slant on things. We might—well, might give her some good books to read," I ended helplessly.

One thin finger of afternoon sun had crept through the heavy yellow silk drapes and lay twinkling along the polished top of a table shaped like a star.

"When I was a kid her age I thought I wanted a swell apartment, jewels, clothes. I know the feeling. And I got mine, off and on. What I paid for it though, Dick! The young ones—the little dolls that come in here evenings—think that's a line about paying too much. They know. Well, I'd like to tell them a thing or two—"

Cynthia never had opened up that way before. She pounded her knees with spread palms and said: "Lordy, if I could point this young one, Sally! She's just at the time now, raring to go. Seventeen, I'd say. She says nineteen. When she looks at me I can see how she thinks back of those young eyes. She admires me as a somebody who's gone across." Cynthia chuckled sardonically. "Me."

"I don't know, Baby. You've had your good times and you've had some breaks."

"Too many! I wish I'd married some dumb clerk and lived on two grand a year. I wish I could steer this kid into a match like that, rather than see her headed the way she is."

"Where does she room?"

"I fixed that. Got her a place at an old lady's house on Ninety-fifth Street. I'm paying good rent so the landlady will check up on the kid's hours and report to me. I told Sally, too, that I'd fire her if she has dates after we close. I'm going to get her a respectable job pretty soon."

"I sighed and shook my head. "That's not exactly sure-fire, you know. She'll beat that game if she wants to. Still, I'll help you guide her right. I'd like to see it just as much as you would. I don't know why, but it's true."

we're a couple of nuts, aren't we, kid?"

Of course, we had talked all around our real emotions. People generally do. Me being guarded and smart and Cynthia haranguing about girls who paid and paid! I suppose we were ashamed because we wanted to preserve what we had lost—the china-blue youth in that little tramp's eyes. I had to wear up very serious and we ended up very serious and righteous about it.

For two months I didn't go to the Salon very often. Business took me on a quick trip to Chicago, for one thing, and then the market was turning somersaults. I had to watch sharp to keep from being the clown who held the hoop. Cynthia called me up over the telephone several times and she was worried.

Looking back on it now, the spectacle of that old girl playing dead to Sally probably would have set an outsider laughing. I saw nothing funny about it then. Whenever I let myself think about the kid at all I grew so panicky and paternal that I couldn't sleep.

Write me out as insincere; say that I was sore because somebody else was going to get what I couldn't have. Anyway—

In April, when the hoods of the long chariots which ply Park Avenue began to glisten with new toys and people were dusting off furniture for penthouse gardens, I went over to the Salon determined to talk to Sally and find out what was going on in that pert head. Cynthia had said she thought the kid wasn't getting into any mischief, but she couldn't be sure.

What I had in mind, I think, was urging Cynthia to let the kid out. I'd get her a nice, respectable position; send her to business school, if necessary. What had I learned both of us so long in this was the fear that if she went we'd somehow lose her. And it wasn't very pretty to imagine the kid taking dictation in starched collar and cuffs. Again, Cynthia wasn't too anxious for me to start being nice to her Sally.

It was ten o'clock—early—when Marshall let us in. I found Sally sitting in the second-floor reception room, smoking a cigarette in a long ivory holder. She jumped up as soon as she saw me. "How's tricks?" I asked.

"Great!" she exploded happily. "How's Daddy?" She sidled over to me and began tugging playfully at my coat lapels. I moved away a bit.

"Where'd you learn that one?" I knew that I was red around the collar and extremely uncomfortable.

"I haven't forgotten," I managed. "It's coming up. But say, aren't you getting a little tired of this racket?"

"Racket?" She wrinkled her nose at me. "Oh, I love it, Dick. Singing and dancing—things I like. The men are fine to me and lots of them are rich."

"Money isn't everything," I managed. "It's coming up. But say, aren't you getting a little tired of this racket?"

DEANNA DURBIN SINGS FOUR NUMBERS IN HER FIRST "GROWN-UP" ROLE, "FIRST LOVE" CLOSING TONIGHT AT THE EMPIRE

Miracles do happen, even in this smashing success, excelling her day and age. Latest miracle to come to pass is Deanna Durbin's new Universal picture "First Love," which ends a two-day showing at the Empire tonight. The miracle lies in that, for the sixth time, Deanna has come through with a smashing success, excelling her previous five pictures, each of which was claimed to be unexcelled at the time of its making. "First Love" presents Deanna as a parentless girl, who, treated like a poor relation by the family of her wealthy aunt and uncle, comes through to a triumphant victory over her surroundings.

FACTOGRAPHS

This year—1940—Japan will celebrate the 2,600th anniversary of Jimmu Tenno's accession to the throne. Jimmu Tenno was the founding emperor of Nippon.

Of North Carolina's 3,500,000 population, 15,000 are listed as Indians.

Certain varieties of unbreakable buttons are made from blood.

Mahogany has been known and used in tropical America for more than 400 years, but was not known and marketed from Africa until the last 100 years.

A new tarnish-proof cloth for wrapping silver is said to be impregnated with tiny particles of silver which draw the tarnishing agents to themselves, leaving the tableware or jewelry tarnish free.

Deanna sings four beautiful selections in "First Love"—"Home Sweet Home," "Amapola," "Spring in My Heart," and Puccini's "One Fine Day," from the opera, "Madame Butterfly." Her voice is growing in power and feeling, giving added beauty to her excellent lyric soprano renditions.

In the cast with her are two newcomers, Robert Stack, the love interest of the story, and Lewis Howard, among other better known players.

By JANE VOILES

A preview of the books we will all be reading this spring:

There are so many grand titles from which to choose that we are tempted to begin four or five books at once. Of the new biographies, may we recommend the courageous record of the blind woman Alice Bretz, "I Begin Again." It is an intensely interesting book full of humor and ingenuity. We quote this sentence to give you an idea of what the book is like. "Blindness," writes Alice Bretz, "has taught me to face facts, to enjoy little things, to appreciate people and to laugh at myself."

If you are an admirer of Helen Hayes you will want to read her biography written by her mother Catherine Hayes Brown. It is written in the form of letters addressed to Helen Hayes' little daughter, Mary MacArthur. The title is "Letters to Mary." It tells about Helen's struggles and triumphs and about her early career with John Drew and William Gillette. Then there is the entertaining "Period Piece" the biography of Ella Wheeler Wilcox by Jenny Ballou. It might be followed with the biography of the sage of Rye-croft, "A Life of Elbert Hubbard," by David Balch. If you read those famous "Little Journeys," by Elbert Hubbard in your youth, you should relish this book. Mrs. Martin Johnson's biography of her husband, "I Married Adventure," promises exciting reading. The biography that is head for the wide-circulation is "Happy Days," by H. L. Mencken. It is a mellow record of a happy childhood in the Baltimore of the '90s. There was a time when the name H. L. Mencken called up everything that was violent and controversial. But that isn't the Mencken of "Happy Days."

There are big names in the list of new novels: Sinclair Lewis, Pearl Buck, Hervey Allen, Nordhoff and Hall. Sinclair Lewis' new novel due in March, better, we hope, than "The Prodigal Parents," which was as flat as unsalted mush, is "Bethel Merriaday." It is the story of a stage-struck girl who lives in a small town—sounds more like Booth Tarkington but we are hoping for the best. Hervey Allen's new book, "It Was Like This," is no "Anthony Adverse." It is really two stories about the World War. And don't expect another "Bounty" tale in Nordhoff and Hall's "No More Gods." They go in for comedy in a big way in this new yarn but their big disappointment is present so you will not be disappointed. In "Other Gods," Pearl Buck writes of the modern American scene with a national hero as the chief character. Erskine Caldwell's new novel "Trouble in July" is going to give the censor board a job again. If you read "God's Little Acre" you will understand. That authority on Russia Maurice Hindus in "Sons and Fathers" has made a compassionate study of the social changes in Russia.

If you are a mystery story fan, the publishers have had you in mind—we never saw a list of new titles. "Murder in Shin Bone Alley" by Helen E. Riley promises to be tops. Agatha Christie's latest is said to be a humdinger. It is called "And Then There Were None." Paul McGuire's "Enter Three Witches," is something more than mere entertainment as McGuire can write. There are both wise cracks and dead bodies in "Susan Wells' "Footsteps in the Air." W. R. Burnett who is king pin as a writer of gangster thrillers, turns out a good one. "High Sierra. It sounds close to home. Erle Stanley Gardner who doesn't seem to take time off for eating and sleeping so often do his stories appear has a new one with the beguiling title "The Case of the Baited Hook." "The Major Has Seven Guests," by Constance Wagner is set in a Fascist Balkan state. Mr. Geoffrey Homes can always be counted upon for a slick job and he promises not to let us down in "Finders Keepers." And finally there is "The Corpse Steps Out," by Craig Rice. We almost forgot—"Greek Tragedy," by G. H. D. and Margaret Cole, one of their best.

Summary books are always popular with the older generation. You will like "The Good Old Days," by David L. Cohn. It is a "history of morals and manners as seen through the Sears Roebuck Catalogues from 1905 to the present." It is said that nothing gives us a cross section of American life in its aspects in quite the way a mail order catalogue does. The book is illustrated and promises to be interesting and amusing. Another book of this type is "Since Yesterday," by Frederick Lewis Allen. It is a continuation of his book, "Only Yesterday," summarizing the period from 1929 to the present. It is also amply illustrated. Mr. Al-Susan Wells' "Footsteps in the Air." W. R. Burnett who is king pin as a writer of gangster thrillers, turns out a good one. "High

Of this latter class—one third of the total relief roll—the report declared:

"This group is composed of alien (or part alien) families who constitute a very large percentage of the entire relief load; bums both masculine and feminine; habitual drunkards and dope users, and just plain chiselers."

The report concluded with this challenging statement:

"The average citizen must realize that while all the people on relief are by no means professional relievers, nevertheless EVERY REAL BUM IN CALIFORNIA IS ON RELIEF."

Both the legislature and the people of California are indebted to the California State Employees' Association for that frank revelation of conditions in SRA. When the employees, assigned to the job of relief administration, feel compelled to protest against being a party to the squandering of public funds, California taxpayers certainly will place their hearty stamp of approval on the efforts of the legislature to clean up the mess. The legislators who refused to saddle California with new taxes—and who demanded that relief expenditures be brought down to a reasonable basis—not only deserve appreciation. They deserve the support of California taxpayers, other things being equal, when they come up for re-election. California needs them!

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Ward, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Steffens and Virgil Gearhart were at Nevada City Sunday, calling on Mr. and Mrs. Ed Birch and helping them with the celebration of their thirtieth wedding anniversary.

would be clear of the danger of falling rock and could break the boulder into pieces small enough to permit them to load a truck.

In getting ready to roll the large boulder, they had dug away the earth from in front of it on the "down" side so that it lay balanced on a ledge of earth, needing only slight leverage to roll it over.

At this point, Burdette stepped behind the boulder to put a bar under it when he was hit in the back of the legs by a smaller rock which broke off the quarry wall. The impetus of the smaller rock threw him against the larger rock with such force that the larger rock was tipped off balance and started to roll. Burdette was unable to get clear and rode the rock over as it turned, his head being crushed.

AMETHYST FOR FEBRUARY

USED EXTENSIVELY IN RINGS AND COSTUME JEWELRY

Burger Knows Gems...

AMETHYST the February Stone, is the purple variety of quartz—named from Greek word meaning "without Drunkenness"—kept wearer from intoxication—was the stone of the purple tribe of Dan in the High Priests' breastplate—finest purple (often reddish) from Russia (Siberia)—light shade found nearly everywhere—good qualities today from Brazil and Uruguay—some from Ceylon and Madagascar—color often patchy and irregular, believed due to manganese, altered or destroyed by intense heat—always an ecclesiastical stone, worn by Roman Catholic Bishops and other prelates.
